Dear SPGians,

Society of Petroleum Geophysicists (SPG), India is publishing its in-house journal GEOHORIZONS to share the knowledge among the fellow geoscientists in the forms of new papers from authors and selected papers from the concluded conference of SPG India for the benefit of SPGians who could not attend the conference.

In all there six papers are being published in this journal, with different topics and the zist of which is explained by the Editor. I am sure these will help in expanding the learning.

In this context, Society of Petroleum Geophysicists (SPG), India, since its inception, has been playing a significant role in bringing together the eminent geoscientists, technocrats, intellectuals, academicians, students and service providers at a common platform for exchange of ideas, sharing of experiences and showcasing of technical skills to the global/ national participants. I request cooperation and contribution from all of you. Moreover, the suggestions for furthers improvement are solicited from all the SPG members.

Elections for regional chapters have been conducted and the results are published in the news section. Regional chapters playing an important role in arranging seminars, workshops, field trips etc. and their activities are covered in the news section. Looking forward to having such seminars, workshops and field trips by all the regional chapters for its members.

I take this opportunity to wish all the geoscientists a Happy and Prosperous New Year 2017.
